

Girls up early for wise words

Like words of inspiration available guest list to get the gals sparrows on Thursday at the breakfast for the Queens- of Karen Phillips' new book Wisdom at Palazzo Versace. esday the Governor-General Bryce did the formal and official Australian launch with 24 of the 50 contributors on hand including a fair smattering of locals who made the trip down to Government House in Canberra. Judging by the long line-up for an autographed copy after the breakfast this is going to be one hot seller.

Sylvia Bradshaw and Sandy Bell share a laugh

Livewire adds spark of humour to book launch

LOOKS like we, your favourite newspaper, have got ourselves a live one folks. Our new kid on the printing block is managing director Sylvia Bradshaw and on Thursday morning she was the red-haired rocket launcher of Karen Phillip's new book Words of Wisdom. If ever she decides to give up newspapers may CC suggest a career in stand-up comedy as she had the mainly female audience roaring with laughter at her speech. Some examples of the wit and wisdom of chairman Sylvia ... Meeting surfing champion Layne Beachley she mused about the aptness of Layne's surname to her occupation: "Maybe I should be Sylvia Winebar." She then went on to talk about her two children and the wisdom of having both delivered by caesarean section: "If I was going in for heart surgery I wouldn't want the surgeon to go in through my mouth would I?" And her legacy to her now adult children is deceptively simple: "I hope to be a good example or a horrible warning," she deadpanned. Look out for Sylvia, she's coming soon to a function near you.
